

New Note From Bulganin on Summit Meet

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin has sent President Eisenhower a new message on an East-West summit meeting, it was disclosed today.

The letter was delivered to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov. The Soviet envoy spent just seven minutes with Dulles to deliver the letter.

"I have just handed over a message from Prime Minister Bulganin to President Eisenhower," Menshikov told reporters.

Asked whether the message concerns an East-West summit meeting, Menshikov said the Bulganin letter "deals with this question." He said the letter is in reply to the President's Feb. 15 message to the Soviet premier.

In his Feb. 15 message to Bulganin, Eisenhower said he felt their long correspondence on a summit meeting had reached "an impasse" which might be broken "by less formal and less publicized contacts" regarding a summit meeting.

In apparent acceptance of the President's view, the Russians last Friday called U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson Jr. to the Soviet Foreign Office.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko proposed to Thompson that a foreign ministers' conference be held to discuss only the time, place and agenda of an early summit conference.

This government has taken the position there should be "adequate" preparations for a summit meeting through diplomatic or foreign ministers' channels. Russia originally resisted the idea of a pre-summit foreign ministers' meeting.

Menshikov arranged to call on Dulles just 90 minutes before he is scheduled to make his first U.S. speech at a national Press Club luncheon.

Some officials believed Menshikov's Press Club speech might be another step in Menshikov's propaganda and diplomatic moves to push the West into an ill-prepared summit meeting.

Youth Curfew at Ft. Smith Planned

FORT SMITH (UP) — The Sebastian County Grand Jury completed five weeks of investigation into Fort Smith's juvenile delinquency Wednesday and recommended a curfew for youngsters of 17 and under.

The jury recommended to Circuit Judge Paul Wolf that the curfew take effect at 10:30 p.m. Sunday through Thursday with a 12:30 a.m. deadline on Friday and Saturdays.

The jury asked that an existing city ordinance with includes a long unenforced curfew be thrown out and a new one adopted.

The jury recommended that penalties for violations include the arrest of violators.

The jury recommended that violators be arrested with first offense fines to be not less than $325 and succeeding violations double that amount. Under the jury recommendations, a parent, legal guardian or other authorized adult would be required to appear in court with the accused youth.

Disability Legislation Being Drafted

WASHINGTON (UP) — The House Judiciary Committee held a closed door session today to start drafting legislation on how to replace a disabled president.

Democratic members of the group were reportedly agreed in support of a bill drawn up by a subcommittee which studied the problem for more than two years. They were at odds with the Eisenhower administration, which claims only a Constitutional amendment can settle for good the legal questions involved.

President Eisenhower disclosed Wednesday he and Vice President Richard M. Nixon had agreed that Nixon would take over the duties of the presidency if Eisenhower were ever unable to continue. Under the agreement, Nixon would not be required to take a new oath of office.

Chairman Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.) of the Judiciary Committee agreed with Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) that "no one can act as President without some sort of oath."

Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.), senior Republican on the committee, planned to press for the administration-favored constitutional amendment.

Sen. Patrick MacNamara (D-Mich.) of the Senate Rackets Committee raised a question whether the Kohler Co. of Wisconsin had broken the law by "spying" on its striking employees.

French Chief Faces Hostile Assembly

PARIS (UP) — Premier Felix Gaillard went before an increasingly hostile National Assembly today to demand a vote of confidence on his handling of the 40-month-old Algerian rebellion.

The vote technically will be on Gaillard's revised $3,150,000,000 military budget which included increased appropriations for operations against the rebels.

Gaillard has been under heavy fire from various political parties, including those in his own coalition cabinet, over the budget. He resorted to the demand for a vote of confidence to ram the controversial measure through.

The cabinet Wednesday authorized Gaillard to seek the vote. He originally planned to use the authorization at the Assembly session Wednesday. But the Assembly unexpectedly suspended the session while its national defense committee studied the new compromise budget.

Gaillard was forced by the right-wing independents — a key bloc in his government — to increase appropriations for fighting the Algerian war. The concession displeased middle-of-the-roaders because of the resultant cut in expenditures for other departments.

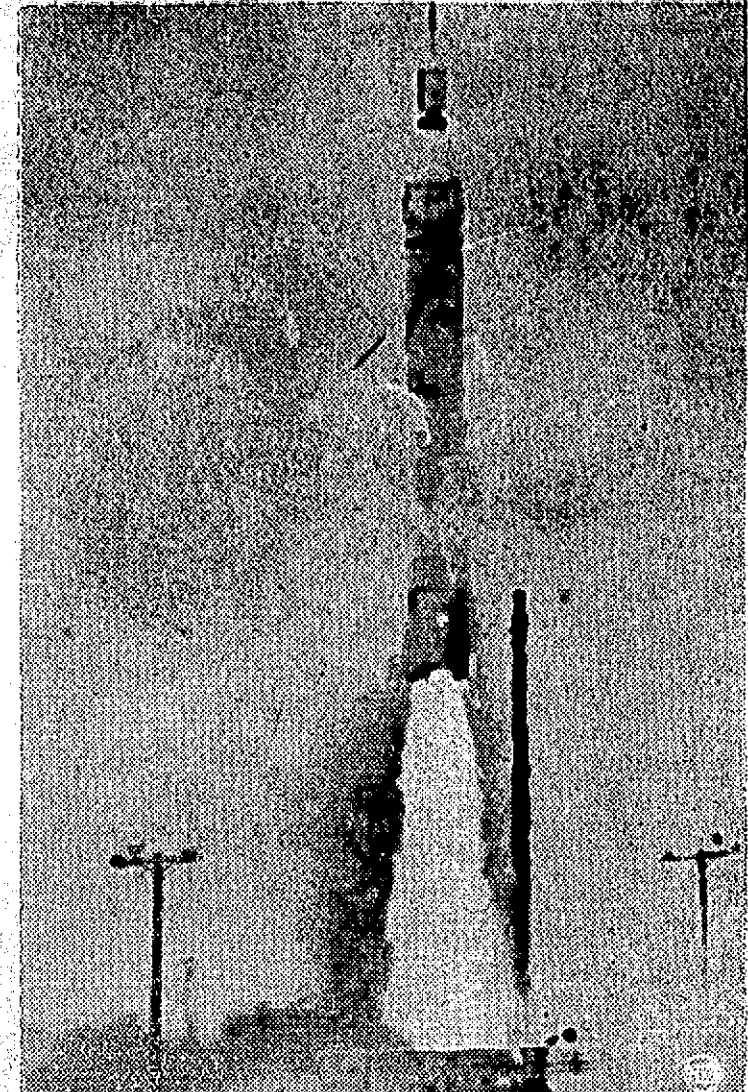

Soviet Subs Observe Launchings

WASHINGTON (UP) — The chief of Navy ordinance said Wednesday it is "likely" Russian submarines have been observing and possibly photographing U.S. missile launchings at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

But Rear Adm. F. S. Whitcomb told a Navy news conference he has no specific knowledge of such Soviet activities.

He said if a Navy ship spotted a Russian sub it would "harass" it by hovering above it until the Soviet craft was forced to surface because of battery and oxygen exhaustion.

Whitcomb said the two vessels would then exchange identification signals and if possible the Navy would try to photograph the Russian submarine.

Whiteside to Go Before Grand Jury

By NEIL MACNEIL
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Miami attorney Thurman A. Whiteside was scheduled to bring before a federal grand jury here today his records of his financial dealings with assigned Federal Communications Commissioner Richard A. Mack.

Also subpoenaed to appear before the jury was Charles F. Shelden, secretary-treasurer of the Shelden-Shelden Insurance Agency in Miami, Fla., in which Mack until recently held a one-sixth interest.

Their appearance was in connection with an FBI investigation of charges that Mack received thousands of dollars from Whiteside, and also was given by Whiteside, without charge the interest in the insurance firm.

The Justice Department has explained that the subpoenas for Whiteside and Shelden "do not mean the department has plans to seek an indictment. It explained they were used as a means of obtaining records not given voluntarily. The FBI has no subpoena powers while a grand jury has."

Mack resigned Monday night, reportedly on the demand of the White House. He was accused in testimony before the House subcommittee on legislative oversight of accepting money from Whiteside in connection with an alleged "pledge" to vote for National Airlines in its successful battle to win prized Miami television Channel 10.

Mack, who has consistently denied wrongdoing, said the sums he received from Whiteside were loans and he has repaid all but $250.

Whiteside testified he sent the subcommittee Mack's cancelled notes for the loans but the subcommittee said it never got them.

Whiteside was said to have pressed National Airlines' case for the TV channel with Mack, although the attorney denied he was paid by National for doing so.

The subcommittee took a breather today while its parent Commerce Committee, to which subcommittee members belong, held a hearing on a meat packers bill.

Hearings on Monday

The subcommittee was scheduled to resume its hearings Monday with Whiteside recalled to the stand. On Tuesday, A. Frank Kalentzine of Miami, an unsuccessful bidder for Channel 10, is billed for another appearance.

Mack, who was excused from testifying Wednesday because he was reported "in a state of shock" from his resignation ordeal is due to take the stand again next Wednesday.

On Wednesday the committee is expected to question Gordon F. Moore, Miami, Eisenhower's brother-in-law, on his alleged involvement in the National Airlines TV case. Moore said Wednesday he had no connection with National Airlines other than a personal friendship with its president, C. C. Baker, and no interest in the TV case.

Philippines Call for More Help of West

MANILA (UP) — Philippine Foreign Minister, Felixberto M. Serrano opened the fourth annual conference of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization today with a call for more help from the West.

Serrano welcomed the military advisers of the eight SEATO nations at a two-day meeting in advance of next week's gathering of SEATO foreign ministers.

He said the goal of the pact countries is the peaceful harnessing of nature and science to "insure... our peoples a life of comfort, abundance and larger freedoms." In what appeared to be a veiled plea for economic aid from the United States, Britain and France, he said:

"Gentlemen, your task in relation to the goal... is a noble but difficult one. To a large extent the burden rests on your shoulders."

Communists Down
a U. S. Plane

OSAN AIR BASE, Korea (UP) — Communist anti-aircraft fire shot down a U.S. Air Force F-8 Sabrejet near the demilitarized zone and barely missed knocking down a second American jet, it was reported today.

The pilot of the second F-8 reported that the airplane in the doomed plane managed to eject himself and was last seen drifting down by parachute into Communist territory.

The two Sabrejets were on a low-level simulated ground support training mission for Republic of Korea troops about 65 miles north of Seoul when the Red guns opened up.

Scientists Are Trying to Find Missing 'Moon'

By CHARLES TAYLOR
United Press Staff Correspondent

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP) — Scientists sounded the wilderness of space today for the voice of America's lost "moon," but as the hours of silence stretched out hope faded for the second Explorer satellite launched by the Army Jupiter-C rocket.

There was a chance that momentarily a radio somewhere might pick up the signal of the slender, 40-inch cylinder. The systems of microphone and microphone stations set up to track satellites were on 24-hour alert for some sign of the man-made moon.

There was a slimmer chance the satellite might be whirling in an unanticipated orbit with both its tiny radio transmitters dead. Uncharted Orbit Possible

One of the key Army scientists here who launched the fiery, four-stage Jupiter-C with the 32.4-pound Explorer II jutting from its nose said Wednesday night it was "quite possible" the satellite was speeding helplessly in an uncharted orbit around the globe.

All that was needed to prove the satellite was in the sky was a response from the tiny tape recorder it carried to the electronic "interrogations" being put out constantly from the ground.

But as the hours piled up with no word from Explorer II, hopes grew dimmer that it survived the intricacies of being blasted into orbit hundreds of miles above the earth at the fantastic speed of 13,000 miles an hour.

Dr. William F. Pickering of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in California, which built the satellite and the final three stages of the Jupiter-CM, said there was a "great probability" the satellite failed to go into orbit.

"There is every indication that the satellite did not function normally," Pickering said. But he added that "We cannot state positively whether it is in orbit or not, but it probably is not."

May Have Fallen in Ocean
He also said Explorer might have tumbled on its arching climb into the heavens and cartwheeled back ignominiously into the ocean.

Meanwhile, Explorer I, successfully launched Jan. 31 also by a Jupiter-C, continued sending back information as it sped around the earth with the heavier Russian Sputnik II.

Eyes turned, too, toward the Navy Vanguard rocket, launched twice unsuccessfully with a 6.4-inch spherical satellite in its nose and now ready in its service tower for a third try, expected before the week is out.

But the focus of attention at this missile center was on the mystery of Explorer II. Its fate seemed swallowed up in silent space and there was endless conjecture as to what might have happened.

The only answer—barring some sudden voice from above to confirm the "moon" was still there—was bound up in the maze of magnetic tape which recorded various pieces of information from the Jupiter-C as it is heaved aloft.

This, however, might take days to sift through and pinpoint the trouble. And the data was incomplete because the speeding rocket assembly lost itself not long after it left the cape, skimming leaving an abrupt end to its rail in the sky.

Senate Farm Writers Okay Plan to Reverse Benson's Support Slash

Expects Russia to Keep Up Meet Pressure

WASHINGTON (UP) — Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov today was expected to keep up the pressure for a quick "summit" conference in his first U.S. speech.

Officials said the talk to a National Press Club luncheon might be a further unfolding of Moscow's slick propaganda-diplomatic plays to push the West into an ill-prepared summit meeting.

Soviet officials said Menshikov would talk about East-West negotiations for a summit conference and would try to answer newsmen's questions on the issue.

Menshikov, a whirlwind operator, said in an interview with the United Press last weekend that he believes a summit conference would be "easy" to work out through diplomatic contacts.

President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles have been less optimistic despite their White House conference on Monday with the affable Russian.

"The United States said that, perhaps this week, is expected to tell the Soviets that the time has come for some real bargaining if an East-West summit conference is to be held. To date, officials said the Soviet seem to be more interested in "pressure tactics."

Starting next year, Harrington has said, taxpayers must list on line 6(A) all reimbursed expenses they had during 1958. Although the new line appears on 1957 tax returns, (which must be filed by April 5) it does not have to be filled in.

Under the expected modification, persons who account for their expense money to their employers will not have to give a second reckoning to the government.

House farm leaders adopted a similar strategy. Abernethy explained the dairy bill was called up for subcommittee action with the expectation that the full House Agriculture Committee would then include it in a catch-all bill.

The Senate committee has been expected to complete action Wednesday on hold-the-line price support legislation. But it took the panel all day to thrash out agreement of another bill calling for a vast expansion in the farm surplus disposal program.

The bill, as finally approved by the committee, calls for sales, barter and gifts of nearly five billion dollars in farm surpluses over the next 2½ years.

The bill went far beyond both the present one billion dollar scope of the program and the administration recommendations for a one-year $1,500,000,000 extension.

Bennett Denies Meeting Faubus

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett branded "in error" a story in a Little Rock newspaper (the Democrat) Wednesday hinting Bennett conferred Feb. 24 with Gov. Faubus at which time the attorney general told Faubus was en route to Little Rock from Washington on a train.

"In the first place," said Bennett, "I was in Batesville that day and Gov. Faubus was en route to Little Rock from Washington on a train."

As a matter of fact the governor and I have never discussed his political plans or mine.

Bennett considered a strong chance to run in 1958 or 1960 said he expected to disclose any thoughts on this summer's primaries within the next two or three weeks.

Rifle Club will not meet tonight but members are urged to watch for announcement next week as the club is planning several afternoon sessions in preparation for the National tournament.

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—Southwest Conference Co-Champs Arkansas and Southern Methodist will go to one another at Shreveport, La., Tuesday at 8 p.m. for the right to meet either Kansas State, Cincinnati or Oklahoma State in the NCAA Western Regional tourney at Lawrence, Kan., next weekend.

Coaches Doc Hayes of SMU and Glen Rose of Arkansas agreed Wednesday on the neutral site by telephone and made arrangements to use the 10,000 seat Youth Center Building on the Louisiana State Fair grounds.

Only five points separated the teams in their previous meeting with SMU winning its game at Dallas 49-40 but losing at Fayetteville 53-63.

The playoff game will have no bearing on the title since the teams will officially share the crown.

Ticket prices for the game were set at $2 for reserved seats, $1 for general admissions and $1 for student tickets, which will be sold only on the campus of the schools involved.

Mail applications should be made to the athletic departments of the schools.

satellite did not blast free of the earth's gravitational pull to become an inert body floating in free space. This would take a velocity of 25,000 miles an hour, and 18,000 was maximum for the Jupiter-C.

Explorer could only afford an error of one degree either above or below the horizontal course it would have to be traveling when its three final solid fuel stages flung it to orbital speed. If it went too high, chances are the pencil-shaped satellite stabbed too high into the heavens, then fell back and burned like a cinder when it smashed into the denser air near earth.

If it went too low, on the other hand, it probably would have also burned, being hurled so fast back into the friction of the atmosphere.

But if something went wrong before the fourth stage of the rocket was fired, it could have fallen all the way back into the ocean without burning up, since full speed was not attained.

Fire Destroys Bank Building in New Jersey

NEWARK, Ark. (UPI)—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a building housing the Bank of Newark and a drug store here early today.

The Newport fire chief and a Newport fireman, en route to the blaze, were injured when their car collided with another at a drive-in restaurant. Chief Harry Banish was taken to a Jonesboro hospital with a fractured arm, and fireman Billy Nelson suffered cuts and bruises.

Jack Magness, an official of the bank, estimated the damage "conservatively" at $40,000. He said all business machines, and office furniture in the bank, and all stock and fixtures in the drug store were a total loss.

The building was owned by the C. M. Edwards estate. Newark is about 16 miles southeast of Batesville, in Independence county.

The entire block was endangered, until the Batesville fire department extinguished flames that had spread to two adjoining buildings.

The operators of the two buildings said they removed most of their stock, but suffered some damage. W. J. Fyeze is president of the bank and owner of one of the "threatened" stores. Smith Stamper was owner of the drug store.

Firemen said the blaze was discovered about 4:45 a.m., in the rear of the drug store.

The fire was the second one here in a little more than a week. Last week a 120,000 fire destroyed a farm implement store.

School Probe in New York to Call Mayor

NEW YORK (UPI)—A grand jury investigating crime in public schools was reported today planning to summon Mayor Robert F. Wagner to explain why he has criticized the jury's activities.

The jury Tuesday handed up a secret presentment that was said to include a sharp attack on the mayor, who last Sunday in a radio broadcast accused the jury of giving the city a "black eye" and presenting "a very unfair picture of the school system."

In other developments on the schools and juvenile delinquency Tuesday:

A 16-year-old high school student showing off a .38-caliber revolver seriously wounded a friend in a Brooklyn classroom. The student, George O'Dell, said it was an accident and his friend absolved him of blame, but police filed a felonious assault and illegal weapon possession charges against him. They arrested six other teenagers and a 22-year-old semi-pro baseball player on charges of previously owning the gun, and filed assault charges against one youth who allegedly hit and kicked a detective while being questioned.

Police in a helicopter captured three hoodoo-playing students after chasing their stolen car at 80 to 100 miles an hour through city streets. Two other teenagers in the car escaped while the helicopter was landing. William Hurley, 16, was charged with grand larceny; Francis Goldberg and Jerry Mason, both 14, were charged with juvenile delinquency.

An 11-year-old Negro fifth grade student, George Jones, confessed he had pushed Louis Diamant, 7, white son of Polish immigrants, to his death off a Hudson River pier Sunday, and that he similarly had drowned 4-year-old Theresa Murphy, Negro girl, last summer. George was charged with "juvenile delinquency—homicide" and held for hearing March 14.

DOROTHY DIX

A Will's the Way to Save Trouble

Dear Dorothy Dix: During the 35 years of our marriage, hubby and I have built up a comfortable estate, raised four children (now married) and settled in nice homes of their own. We started with nothing and are proud of what we have now. My husband, however, will not make a will and I understand if he dies without one, I'll have considerable trouble settling his affairs. How can I convince him that this is a necessary procedure?

MRS. K. N. Dear Mrs. K. N.: It's certainly surprising how many men of sound business sense and judgment neglect this very necessary detail. Whether they delay it because of superstition (many believe that they are signing their death warrants by making wills) or because they can't bear the thought of death or just because they can't face the thought that somebody else will spend he money they made, I don't know. You will indeed have difficulty settling his affairs, an dno money may not be distributed in accordance with his and your wishes and needs. Furthermore, you'll be involved in a lot of avoidable legal expense, fees and estate or inheritance taxes. I suggest that you invest $3.95 in a copy of "Your Family Without You," by N. R. Caine. Read it with your husband, or to your husband, but if it doesn't convince him to make a will, he's just stubborn and stupid.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm in love with the boy who tends the fountain at our local drug store. I've been trying to get him to ask me out but he never does. I'm 16 and he's about 18. Please don't say this is puppy love because I know it's the real thing. I've had crushes before but this is different.

HEARTSICK Dear Heartsick: So, I won't say it's puppy love, but it is a case of hero worship. If you took a census among your school pals, you'd doubtless find scores of other girls with the same crush. Learning to do without the boy you want but can't have is the No. 1 lesson in growing up. Happy recovery.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm 19 and have been dating a girl for ten months. She is now 17. We like each other very much and, although people say we're going steady, we aren't. We're sensible enough to agree on the fact that it's quite senseless to go steady at our ages. She wants me to go out with other girls, and I want her to go out with other boys. Although we agree to do so, we never meet anyone we like well enough to date. What's the way out of this dilemma?

RAYMOND Dear Raymond: Just to break the spell, try going out with someone else you're not too crazy about. That will satisfy everyone that you two aren't going steady, but my guess is that you'll never be satisfied with anyone but each other.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a happily married man with just one gripe. I like dessert, and my wife refuses to make any. I don't like "store" cake, but sure would appreciate some home-baked goodies now and then. SWEET TOOTH Dear Sweet Tooth: Come now, sweetie, "store" cake can be very very good. Experiment with the makers in your neighborhood and I bet you come up with something delectable. If you must have home baking, try some yourself. There are dozens and dozens of delicious and easy-to-make mixes on the market today anyone of which you could whip up in a short time. Bake on Saturday for the rest of the week and I'll bet you'll be having the neighbors in for samples.

Send your problem to Dorothy Dix. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address her in care of this newspaper.

N. Y. Garment Industry Out on Strike

NEW YORK (UP) — A quarter century of labor peace in the huge garment industry ends today when 65,000 workers leave their jobs in the lofts along Seventh Avenue and March to Madison Square Garden.

The first general strike in the industry since 1933 is expected to affect a total of 105,000 workers in New York City and State, New Jersey, Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island.

Federal and city mediators joined forces Tuesday in efforts to avert the strike and scheduled new meetings today in hopes they could bring the parties together for a quick end to the walkout.

The union said an additional 25,000 workers, who make belts, buttons, and embroidery, will be idled as a result of the strike.

Officials of the Dress Joint Board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union took elaborate pains to insure a mass turnout for the rally, at which ILGWU President David Dubinsky and AFL-CIO President George Meany would join the mass workout.

The million dollar a year industry has a quarter-century history of labor peace and extraordinary labor-management cooperation. But between 1900 and 1933 it was the focus of 10 strikes marked by violent and bloody battles in the garment section, which was then a true Tower of Babel, with hordes of its workers recent immigrants from all sections of Europe.

The crazy-quilt pattern of the entire garment industry has been celebrated in books, like Richard Bissell's "72 Cents," and musical comedies, "Inkama Game," which the strike has been called.

Meany will speak.

Workers were instructed in special delivery letters to take their usual places at their machines at 9 a.m. and to walk out 15 minutes later.

Madison Square Garden, second of the big rally, is about a half mile from the center of the garment district. Streets were expected to be filled to brimming with marching cutters, sample makers, examiners, drapers, pressers, finishers, cleaners and operators.

Shipping clerks and sorters, who have a separate contract with the five employer groups, against which the strike has been called, adapted from that book.

Deaths From Alcohol Now Stands at 23

NEW YORK (P)—Two men were arrested in Hoboken, N.J., today on murder charges in the violent alcohol deaths of 23 New York City persons, police announced.

Police said Francisco Padua, 32, an employee of a chemical company, admitted he stole 60 gallons of wood alcohol from his firm and peddled it in Manhattan and the Bronx for $35 per five-gallon can.

Arrested with him was Pedro Rodriguez, 26, a tannery worker who was said to have aided Padua in distributing the lethal alcohol.

The men were arrested at their homes early today and booked by Hoboken police as fugitives from murder charges in New York City. They will have a hearing in Superior Court, Jersey City, later today.

Twenty-three persons in the Bronx and the Puerto Rican section of Manhattan's Harlem have died of drinking the alcohol in the last week. Several are still hospitalized, some in critical condition from the effects of the cheap bootleg "whiskey."

Police were at first stymied in their search for the alcohol source because the early victims reached hospitals unconscious and died without being able to tell where they bought the vicious drink.

Bronx detectives said they received information that Rodriguez had supplied some of the wood alcohol to neighborhood bootleggers, who mixed it with fruit juice or soda before peddling it to their slum customers.

CHAPTER XXII

I dialed Mary's office. Soon as Mary got on the phone she asked, "Where have you been all afternoon? I've called the house at least half a dozen times."

"It's my day off so what difference it make to you if I'm checking, sleeping, taking in a movie, or watching pigs in a gym?" I asked.

"It would be just too bad if you spent a few minutes of the afternoon seeing Uncle Frank. I suppose you were too busy for that."

"I'll see him tomorrow."

"No more stalling. I'm glad you called. Dave, I have to type up the minutes of a big sales conference. I won't be home till nine."

"I'll manage. Mean you get stuck on your job, too?"

"Indeed I do," Mary said in an oversweet voice. "But I got time and a half for it and $2 for supper money."

She hung up and I counted my change. All the fares and phoning left me with 70 cents. I could go up to the station and maybe borrow a buck, along with a lot of ribbing.

I walked six blocks to the cross-town bus and rode over to the Bronx, then up Third Ave. A tall young woman wearing cozy black and gold treading pants that proved she had thin legs, and an interesting suede belt jacket, opened the door.

I followed her into the living room and those long legs sure took big steps. There was a plaid skin overnighter covered with plane stickers against one wall.

Mrs. Owens came in from the kitchen, drying her hands on her apron. "Mr. Wintino, I hope we didn't put you to no trouble by..." What happened to your face?"

"Bruised it horsing around."

"Put a hot place of raw potato on it soon as you get home. This is my daughter, Susan. Came in from South America by plane this morning."

"I recognized her from the picture on the piano," I said politely.

"I hope not," Susan said. "I looked like a freshly stuffed yoke when that thing was taken."

Mrs. Owens rubbed her hands on her apron again. "I thought you see, Mr. Wintino—"

"You look like a dancin' John to me, Wintino," Susan cut in, her voice flat and hard, "but you're a detective and so was Pop. And Ma has confidence in you. There's something fishy about a pinch-penny like Al Wales having a bankroll on him..." and then what we found today. I'm going to be frank with you, because Ma thinks you'll understand."

"What do you want me to understand?"

"It's like this, we don't want to do anything shady or that might hinder you in finding the killers. At the same time four grand isn't anything to toss away and if it turns out we can keep the dough, I don't want it tied up as evidence for the next hundred years."

"What four?" I began.

"Hold still for a hot second," Susan told me, darting out of the room.

Mrs. Owens gave me a sickly smile. "We want to do the right thing, what poor Ed would have wanted us to do, I wanted to take it to the local station house at once, but Susan thought it would be just as well to ask your advice."

"You found four thousand bucks?" I asked as Susan came bounding into the room carrying a large dresser drawer. It was an old plain one, cracked in several places. She placed it upside down on the living room table as Mrs. Owens reached over to yank a lace covering out of the way.

Susan put a small pile of $50 bills on the drawer and a savings bankbook with the word "Green" neatly put across it. It was a pile of dirty white tape were clinging to the bottom of the drawer.

"I was going through Pop's things, you know, getting them ready to throw out or sell. I had this drawer too far and it nearly fell. When I grabbed it I felt the money and bankbook taped to the bottom. I didn't know it was money — it was in a plain white envelope — till I tore the envelope open and saw the green. This is what we want to see you about — four grand and this bankbook. It's a Brooklyn savings bank and in the name of Francis Parker. As you'll see, the account was opened last March with five bucks. A week later there was a deposit of $10. On April 1 there's a withdrawal of $4, and on April 5 a deposit of $4,000.75. The entire account was closed out on April 22, about two weeks ago. Take a look at the bankbook."

She handed me the book as she nervously lit a cigarette. I said, "You shouldn't have touched things." "Where'd the envelope go?" "I got so excited when I saw the money, I tore the envelope open. It was all in pieces, so I threw it away."

"Where did you throw it?"

"In the garbage can. What's so important about an old envelope?"

"At first I thought it was a letter, but when I saw the bills, well, naturally I ripped it open. Told you the envelope tore."

"I was thinking of prints," I said, opening the book. There was a "ck" next to the $4,000.75 deposit, meaning it had been made by check. It was a downtown Brooklyn bank. "Ever hear of Francis Parker before?"

"Never. Neither has Ma."

Says Few Acts of Violence Proved Hoaxes

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—A union attorney told the Senate Select Committee today that at least three reports of violence and vandalism in the 4-year-old strike of the United Auto Workers and against the Kohler Co. proved to be "hoaxes."

Joseph Raub, attorney for the UAW, said that one specific fake was perpetrated "at the request of the Kohler Co."

But Lyman C. Conner, chairman of the plumbline firm's management committee, said it was the company which incited the phony.

Testimony on the hoaxes came as Raub and Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ark.) clashed in a new verbal tussle. It started when Goldwater questioned the value of three "hoax" reports and said the company has some 800 allegations of violence.

Rejected As Evidence

Raub, representing the committee's witness at the time—a former Kohler striker named Ernest L. Rose—protested that any such total must include all persons who received objectionable telephone calls during the strike or else was "some kind of a joke." He commented that Goldwater had not seen the company's affidavits but was willing to declare that they showed violence.

Goldwater replied that the 800 incident figure has been used widely in the newspapers. Raub replied "you just objected to our putting in a newspaper account. Senator, why don't you play fair."

Goldwater had asked that newspaper accounts describing one of the hoaxes be kept out of the record until a witness could be questioned about it.

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) had also rejected as evidence a statement by the wife of a man involved in one of the reported "hoaxes." Raub said the statement, given to the district attorney, showed that the wife of the man who "perpetrated the hoax at the request of the Kohler Co." had "admitted" it.

No Shots Fired

Rose began discussing that "hoax" incident when McClellan asked if Rose "really" believed his statement that non-strikers at the Kohler's Wisconsin plant had committed acts of violence against themselves and their friends to create ill will against the union. Rose said "three men from the Kohler Co." instructed an employee who later told the sheriff he had fired a shotgun blast at a man hovering near his garage. Rose said it was later determined that there were no pellets or holes in the garage and that it was proved there had been no shot fired.

McClellan ruled out the statement of the wife of the Kohler worker, identified as Henry Joyce, because it was not sworn. Conner, in his brief appearance, said that Gerard Desmond, a company attorney, would testify on the incident later and state that "The Kohler Co. found that it was a hoax and so reported to everybody."

Rose Cites Vandalism

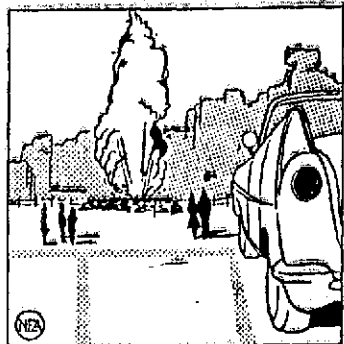

At Goldwater's request, Raub, conferring with aides from Sheboygan, Wis., testified that there are three "proved" hoaxes "that are practically admitted." He added, "we feel that there were others," but said that the additional cases become "debatable." Rose testified he was one of the strikers who was a victim of vandalism. He said his car was scratched, dented and splattered with paint with damages set at $28.

He said a plate glass window belonging to the union's local president, Allan Graskamp, was broken and other strikers had their cars "sprayed with acid."

Matter of FACT

No geyser discharges water at set or regular intervals. Some, such as Old Faithful in Yellowstone Park, approach regularity. Old Faithful plays about every hour, its average interval being slightly over one hour. Each time Old Faithful erupts it sends from 10,000 to 15,000 gallons of boiling water to an average height of about 130 feet.

Air Force Is Studying a Space Station

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Air Force is now studying a space station that would be built more than 20,000 miles above the earth and hover over any given part of the world.

This was disclosed by Lt. Gen. Clarence S. Irvine, Air Force deputy chief of staff for materiel, in a speech Tuesday to the Armed Forces Communications Electronic Assn.

He did not estimate when such a satellite actually could be built. But he said this and other "fantastic" developments "will come into being."

"One of the most interesting space vehicles we are now studying is a satellite that can hover under control over a given portion of the world," Irvine said. "This of course means establishing circular orbits of over 20,000 miles."

Earth Under Surveillance

The space station would achieve a hovering effect because its orbital rate would exactly match the speed with which the earth revolves on its axis. The station therefore would be in a fixed position with relation to the point on earth above which it was built.

Some scientists have calculated that three such space stations placed 26,000 miles in the sky could keep the entire earth under surveillance.

Irvine said such devices have tremendous possibilities even in their earlier stages including reconnaissance or "counter measures" against enemy communications.

He said "in due course" the Air Force will have manned space vehicles that can stay aloft over sustained periods, either orbiting around the globe, hovering or "following directed non-orbital flight patterns."

See Ground Positions

Irvine said such space craft will be serviced in time from large space stations, reducing the need to take off from earth with gigantic fuel loads and enabling "space forces" to remain aloft for "considerably extended periods."

Discussing the possibilities of earth reconnaissance, Irvine said optics and photography are so well developed today that a satellite at 5,000 miles could see ground positions as well as men in planes at 10,000 feet.

The Army announced Tuesday that it has developed a far-seeing new radar device that may be able to provide more than the 15-minute warning of approaching intercontinental missiles that the Air Force has promised.

The Army described the development as a "major technological breakthrough." But it said the missile-detection equipment may not be ready for production before 1960 or 1961.

Only Few Agri Graduates Go Back to Farm

MINNEAPOLIS (UP)—Only 17 per cent of the nation's agricultural college graduates return to the farm upon completion of their school or military service, according to Northwestern National Life Insurance Co.

Many of the rest desert the farm for well-paying jobs in related industries and professions. The firm's report, issued today, was based on a survey of 50 agricultural colleges from Maine to California.

The company said about 30 per cent of the 7,300 yearly graduates join industrial and commercial firms at good salaries.

Partly responsible, it said, is the big investment now needed for modern farming. About 5 per cent of the graduates go into farming after they have saved enough money from other jobs.

Of the remainder of the graduates, 17-18 per cent go into government agricultural service, 12-13 per cent into teaching, 14-19 per cent into graduate study, and 3-6 per cent, miscellaneous.

The company said it also found there has been little expansion in agriculture enrollments in recent years despite a heavy demand. It blamed the lack of interest in agriculture studies on the less favorable farm cost-price relationship, severe droughts and the well-publicized salaries received by graduates in other fields.

LIBRARY PRESENTED

BERLIN (UP)—The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission has presented a depository library on nuclear physics to the Berlin Institute for Nuclear Research. The library, which was donated Tuesday under the Atoms-for-Peace Program, consists of 13,272 research reports, a complete set of "nuclear science abstracts," a number of special bibliographies and 50 reference books.

Man Wanted by Police Is Summoned

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate Select Committee will summon to hearings here a Michigan auto union member wanted by Wisconsin police, Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) said today. Wisconsin authorities announced they will try to get the worker extradited from Washington to Wisconsin to stand trial. The case promised a unique test of a state's power to compel a "wanted" person to return to face charges.

The worker is John Guhaca, a member of the AFL-CIO United Auto Workers Union who lives in Mt. Clemens, Mich. He has been indicted in Wisconsin for assault with intent to do great bodily harm in connection with the 1934 beating of 65-year-old William Berach and his son. The elder Berach received a broken neck and died four months later, according to previous testimony.

McClellan told reporters Guhaca "will be called" to testify in the committee's investigation of the nearly four-year-old UAW strike against the Kohler Co. of Kohler, Wis. The beating allegedly occurred in connection with the strike.

Guhaca has kept out of reach of Wisconsin police thus far because Gov. G. Mennen (D-Wis.) Williams of Michigan has refused to extradite him from his Michigan home.

Sheboygan County (Wis.) District Attorney David Weber said Tuesday night he has made arrangements with Wisconsin Gov. Vernon W. Thomson and State Attorney General Stewart Honeck to seek Guhaca's extradition from Washington if he comes here to testify.
